Additional Details

Reams defines a derivative as an instrument or contract whose value is derived from the performance of an underlying financial asset, index or obligation. Derivatives are employed infrequently, yet opportunistically, when a strategy is unavailable or not cost effective through the cash market. Derivatives used are strictly constrained by client investment policy.

The Long Duration Composite strategy employs derivatives in three main forms. Interest rate derivatives, such as U.S. Treasury futures and interest rate swaps, are used to manage duration and yield curve exposure. Credit Default Swaps (CDS) are used as substitutes for cash bonds and do not introduce leverage into the portfolios. Index products (CDX) are used for efficient, diversified exposure to the high yield and investment grade markets.

Performance

The U.S. Dollar is the currency used to express performance. Returns are presented gross and net of management fees and include the reinvestment of all income. Net of fee performance was calculated using actual management fees. The internal composite dispersion presented is an equal-weighted standard deviation calculated for the fully discretionary, fee-paying accounts in the composite the entire year. The three-year annualized ex-post standard deviation, presented as a measure of volatility, measures the variability of the composite and the benchmark returns over the preceding 36-month period. Three-year annualized ex-post standard deviation of the composite and benchmark are not shown for periods where there were less than 36 months available. Gross returns were used to calculate the risk measures presented in this GIPS Report.

Returns presented are time-weighted returns and are based on fully discretionary accounts under management. Past performance is not indicative of future results.
